

Woody Plant Conference

7/21/2017 - 7/21/2017

Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pennsylvania

The 20th Annual Woody Plant Conference at Swarthmore College focuses on great woody plants for the Mid-Atlantic and how to use them in the landscape. Featured speakers include: Nathan Erwin, Director of the Insect Zoo at the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History, will speak about plant pollination and some unlikely pollinators; Tim Boland, Executive Director at Polly Hill Arboretum, will discuss his experiences and goals for collecting woody plants in the U.S.; and Peter Del Tredici, Senior Research Scientist Emeritus at Arnold Arboretum, who will focus on understanding the impacts of urbanization on plants in both native and designed landscapes.
